

MARTIN MAKES PLEA FOR POLICY OF PROTECTION

Urges Retention of Principles of Protective Tariff

A TRIBUTE TO WOMEN

"Policy Affects Welfare of American People
Vitality"

HARRISBURG, Nov. 20.—(INS)—An urgent plea for the retention of the principles of the protective tariff so as to equalize the cost of production in this and competing countries was sounded this afternoon by General Edward Martin, Auditor General and chairman of the Republican State Committee, at the opening session of the annual convention of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women here.

"It is gratifying that arguments made to American women that the tariff increases the cost of living have had little effect," Martin told the council. He pointed out that up to this time about $1,600,000,000 in American capital has been invested abroad during 1929, that the greatest item of cost in manufactured articles is the labor involved and that, in America, "we pay three to ten times more than any other nation."

"The protective policy of the Republican party is again being considered by the Congress," Martin said. "It affects the welfare of the American people vitally. It particularly affects Pennsylvania, which has a million wage-earners. We produce annually seven billion dollars worth of manufactured articles, and we rank fourteenth among agricultural states. If labor is to be employed at a wage consistent with our high standard of living—if capital is to have a return sufficiently large to keep it in the United States—if our thrifty farmers are to have a proper market for their produce, then the principles of the protective tariff must be sustained. In many cases the schedule must be revised upward."

"The record of the Pennsylvania Republican party has been remarkable. In 1860 fifty-three per cent of the state's revenue was used for the payment of the interest on and the funding of the public debt. In 1909 the last of the old debt was cancelled. Since that time we have issued $100,000,000 worth of road bonds, but they are being retired from the motor fund and are not a charge against the general fund of the state treasury. In 1860 only fourteen per cent of our public money was used for welfare, education and transportation. Now more than eighty-five per cent is used for that purpose. It is a record to be proud of."

"Before you again assemble in annual convention the Republican party will have nominated a state ticket. It is a matter of weightiest importance and the women of Pennsylvania will have a great part in it. Only those should be nominated for office who will sustain our present progressive policies."

"The Republican party is pledged to an uncompromising leadership, favoring common sense and decency. It demands a clean ballot and strict law observance. The party leadership does not seek notoriety. It is imbued with the ideals of our fathers and adheres to the principle that majority must be observed. The women of Pennsylvania should demand that these principles be continued."

General Martin paid high tribute to the work of the council of Republican women, and women Republicans in general. He voiced the thanks of the Republican State organization to Mrs. Worthington Scranton, of Scranton, national committeewoman, and to Mrs. Charles F. Stauffer, of Lancaster, vice-chairman of the State Committee, for their excellent work. He said the Republican women of Pennsylvania are courageous, unselfish and efficient.

TELEPHONE TYPEWRITER INSTALLED HERE BY STATE

Equipment Placed to Receive Messages Broadcast By State Police

A WONDERFUL MACHINE

The telephone typewriter to operate as part of the State-wide communication system planned by the Pennsylvania State Police has been installed in the municipal building here by the Bell Telephone Company. It is not as yet in working order due to the fact that the other units in the chain of these machines have not been connected.

These machines will be operated from a master machine located at four central points throughout the State. Approximately 100 cities and towns are to be provided with facilities for the instantaneous dissemination of police information.

From these central points or zone headquarters information will be flashed over the system to the other cities and towns, which are to be provided with machines, like the one installed here, which receive messages only.

The sending machines, which resemble huge typewriters, are equipped with a standard keyboard. When a key is pressed, electrical impulses are released which speed over a network of telephone wires to machines in the outlying stations, where the letter or symbol corresponding to the key touched by the operator on the sending apparatus is printed clearly on a sheet of paper.

Switchboards and other equipment will be installed at zone headquarters so that messages may be dispatched to one city only, if desired. The equipment, however, will permit the sending of the same information to all stations, at the same time, at the rate of 40 words per minute.

Police in communities served by receiving machines only will telephone to zone headquarters the messages they wish to be flashed over the system.

The system was designed to facilitate the capture of criminals, as it makes possible the broadcasting to all important points in the State the details of a crime within a few minutes after it has been committed.

The telephone typewriter is the most

NEEDLEWORK GUILD EXHIBITS 5,000 GARMENTS; ANNOUNCE SIX NEW DIRECTORS AND A NEW GUILD UNDER ITS DIRECTION BY WOMEN OF NEWPORTVILLE

Yesterday was a red letter day for the Bristol Branch of the Needlework Guild of America, when on the occasion of the annual exhibition of garments there were secured six new directors, announcement made of a new Guild formed under the direction of the local women at Newportville, and 5,000 garments of quality placed on display.

The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. John Hartman, a member of the National Executive Board, and president of the Olney Branch of the Guild.

The Bristol Guild was congratulated upon the number and quality of its garments placed in conspicuous places in the community building, where the meeting was held, and Mrs. Hartman likewise expressed satisfaction over the splendid minutes as read by Mrs. David O. Taylor, which presented in a clear manner the work of the Guild and account of the last annual meeting and exhibit.

The manner in which the Olney branch functions in order to secure new directors was told of by the Guild's president. "The memorial directorship, which you are carrying out here in Bristol, really had its inception in our Guild," remarked the speaker. And she continued by stating that no finer memorial could be had for any loved one who has passed on than to establish a directorship in the Needlework Guild in their memory.

The thought was given out by Mrs. Hartman regarding the forming of a men's auxiliary. The Olney Guild being unable to secure a man to head the auxiliary a young woman was placed in charge of the work, and annually collects $1 from each man affiliated, the aggregate sum being used for the purchase of new garments for men.

Bristol workers were also given another new and novel idea regarding baby directorships. The one giving the message of the afternoon told of how a number of babies born during one year could have two garments contributed for each, with one of the grandmothers assuming the directorship.

Mrs. John Reed reported regarding the work of the Colored Branch of the Bristol Guild, announcing that the exhibit of this group is to take place on December 4th in the community house. Miss Stryker is to be the speaker at that time. Mrs. Reed told the group that the work is progressing well.

Warm blankets, 23 layettes, a goodly array of dresses, men's and boys' clothing, underwear, and miscellaneous items were included in yesterday's display of garments. The layettes in white baskets were prepared by the Junior Branch of the Guild and were complete in every detail. The two young girls who had placed the most garments in their baskets, and the one who had contributed more of her own handwork to her basket than others were called forward, and presented with gifts by Mrs. Henry Ancker, president of the Bristol Guild, who presided at the session. The trio of young women whose work has been outstanding during the year were: Miss Kitty Machette, Miss Anna Mandeville, who placed greatest number of garments in the baskets; and Miss Helen Marino, who accomplished most of the handwork herself.

It was announced by the presiding officer that during the coming year Mrs. Linton Martin will act as chairman of the Juniors, assisting them with their splendid phase of work.

Mrs. John Birkey, president of the recently organized branch at Newportville, was asked to rise, and best wishes were extended to her and her co-workers in the years to come.

Work of the Labrador Branch of Bristol was brought to the gathering by Mrs. Louis C. Spring. Mrs. Spring announced that 362 garments had been sent to Labrador during the past year, each piece being of heavy woolen material. She asked for assistance from all in helping this work to grow.

Miss Emily Crowell, of Oak Lane, another speaker scheduled for the afternoon, was unable to attend.

During the course of the afternoon meeting the group rose for a moment of silent prayer in memory of two directors who had died during the past year. Mrs. Dallas Irwin, and Miss Annie B. Landreth.

The Bristol Branch of the Guild this year had 5,000 garments to display, and although the total is slightly less than last year's 5,866, the work of the guild itself has not diminished. A slight decrease was noted in some of the affiliated societies, but with renewed interest in these it is expected the exhibit next year will far surpass any other. "We are proud of our work, and think it is wonderful considering our handicaps of the past year," stated Mrs. Ancker.

The garments collected by the many directors are here listed: Honor roll—Mrs. Clifford L. Anderson, 456; Mrs. Henry Ancker, 299; Miss Esther Lawrence, 263; Mrs. Fred Kring, 236; Mrs. Louis C. Committee in Scout Campaign
Working Hard to Obtain Goal

MUST RAISE $40,000.00

Members of the Advance Gift Committee in the county wide Boy Scout campaign for $53,000 began active solicitation yesterday, according to Thomas B. Stockham, Morrisville, chairman of the committee. Mr. Stockham said: "I am certain that this campaign is going over big. Senator Buckman, our general chairman, has charged my committee with the responsibility of getting the first $40,000 before Thanksgiving. I am confident that the thirty-eight men on my committee can get at least $1,000 apiece, and that we will have subscriptions for $40,000 in hand by November 27th."

The $53,000 asked for is for an expansion of the Scout program in the county so as to offer Scouting to more boys, and also to improve Camp Buccoo, which is the Boy Scout year-round camp.

MANY SEATS RESERVED FOR "PAGE THE PRINCE"

Great Rush at Opening of Ticket Exchange for High School Show

AN INTERESTING THEME

Reserved seat sale of tickets for "Page the Prince," the John B. Rogers Production, that is being staged here in Bristol tomorrow and Friday evenings at the high school auditorium, for the high school, opened yesterday at Smoyer's Plumbing Store, 111 street, with a large and eager crowd in attendance.

While there was a great rush for the opening, for the past two nights the selling has been continuing briskly, and there are still good reservations to be had. Arrangements are being made so that all can be accommodated for both performances.

Judging from the enthusiasm shown at the last few rehearsals, this show promises to be a master production in every way. "Page the Prince" with its real melodies, snappy dances, and clever plot combined in one night's entertainment is a treat you cannot afford to miss.

There is a very clever story connected with the plot of the show. The theme concerns the little principality of Gondolivia, on the Rhine River. The Prince of the realm, Edward (Howard Smoyer) and his sister, Princess Otilie (Roberta Pearson) are sojourning in America to raise funds for their national treasury. Count DeCharge, their prime minister (William Leigh) who is with them, makes a match with a wealthy American millionaire, Mr. Brocton (Marvin Collins) and Mrs. Brocton (Mildred Randall) to marry their daughter, Betty (Doris Johns) to the Prince with the understanding that "Pa" Brocton, with his millions will pay their national debt.

Meanwhile Betty meets "Ed" and falls in love with him, all the while thinking him a poor American college student, and Otilie, who is masquerading as Rosetta Rhineland, a cabaret dancer at the Little Gondolivia Cafe, meets Bob Benedict (Thomas Barrett) Ed's college chum, and he becomes very much attracted to her not realizing she is a Princess and his chum's sister.

The scene shifts from the Cafe in New York to Gondolivia, where everyone is present for the annual Festival and "Waltz of the Rose," where each year they gather together to see the peasants dance. The American Detective, William J. Spurns (Joe Britton) and his assistant, Heinrich (Rens Swan) have arranged for a substitute for the real Prince to protect him from the Bolsheviks and Al E. Oomp, soldier of fortune, gets the job. Many entangling situations are brought about when the "doorman" is taken for the "Prince."

Princess Otilie throws a rose at the Festival and Bob catches it but is told it is not Rosetta's but that of the Princess. Bob is just about to get himself married to the wrong Princess, when Princess Pearl of Bolkonia (Anita Nonini) enters the picture. Pearl is attended by her own notables, Duke Sminkure (Joseph Alta) and Sir Loinsleak (Nelson Green), villains of deepest, darkest dye, who are plotting to steal the Gondolivian throne.

Farcial and melodramatic situations now follow one another in quick succession until the story is finally straightened out to everyone's satisfaction and the play ends with the prospect of everyone living happily ever after.

PLANE TALK

By HARRY A. SUTTON
Of the Technical Staff,
The Aviation Corporation (Written Expressly for International News Service)

18, Vertical Banks and Spirals

Banks of greater than 45 degrees are loosely called vertical banks. A vertical bank is executed by moving stick and rudder over farther than in an ordinary turn.

As the plane approaches a true 90-degree bank, the effect of the controls will be changed. That is, the rudder, now horizontal, will exert an upward and downward control, and the elevator, practically vertical, will direct the plane's movements in a horizontal plane. Steep banks should not be made close to the ground since they require careful and expert manipulation of the controls.

To come out of such a turn, the controls are used in much the same manner as in resuming straight flight from any turn but greater care is necessary in properly co-ordinating the control movements to prevent skidding or side slipping.

Turns made while in a glide produce a spiral descent. Ailerons control the amount of bank and the elevator controls the steepness of descent. Rudder and ailerons must be properly coordinated as in any turn. Spirals are useful in gliding from a high altitude to a field as this method of descent permits the keeping the field in view at all times.

(Tomorrow's chapter of Plane Talk will discuss Loops and Rolls.)

HUNDREDS OF BOYS ANXIOUS TO BECOME SCOUTS IN COUNTY

By WILLIAM F. LIVERMORE, JR.
(Bucks County Scout Executive)

"Hundreds of boys of scout age in Bucks county are unserved by organized troops on account of the limited staff and budget of the Council. The addition of two assistant executives is imperative in order to adequately take care of the demands for more intensive organization in many communities."

"When the money is secured it is planned to station an assistant scout master in both the northern and southern sections of Bucks county, with headquarters at Quakertown and Bristol, respectively."

"I believe the amount raised will leave the executive staff and committee forces free from financial cares for at least two years, and will enable them to give more time and energy directly to the activities of Scouting proper. It was the intention of the executive board to compare favorably with neighboring counties in the development of Scouting and camping activities for boys."

ROMANCES OF ADVERTISING

There is an almost endless story of great achievement, actual production and superlative performance back of that now prosaic slogan, "It pays to advertise." Slogans in business are not always substantiated by subsequent events, just as guarantees do not always hold water, but the business has not been found in which "advertising does not pay." What capital is to industry, what rainfall is to farm soil, advertising is to business. Advertising is as necessary to national distribution as the railroads.

Speak of goodwill in business and you really mean reputation. Reputation in modern business is attained only through the coordination of merit of product, scientific business methods and adequate advertising.

In 1886 25 gallons of a soft drink syrup called Coca-Cola was sold for $25. From this sale the first Coca-Cola advertisement was paid for. The original company sold its good will for $20,000,000.

Billions are spent with profit for advertising in the magazines and newspapers of this country annually. Once it was the custom to advertise new products in a small way, increasing the advertising and broadening its scope as business results warranted. Today, where capital is available, there is no longer the cautious venturing into the waters. Big business now strikes for the deep water first.

The first Wrigley's gum ad cost $32—the company's entire capital. The Waterman fountain pen company started in business with a $62.52 publicity campaign, and the Hupp Motor Corporation with a $100.65 campaign. In 1890 the Borden Company appropriated $513.75 for advertising. All of these internationally known corporations now spend millions annually for advertising in newspapers, magazines and in other forms.

WOMEN SMOKERS

The announcement that women are in large part responsible for the vast increase in the consumption of cigarettes makes more difficult the defining of a lady. It is no longer possible to differentiate between the sexes by a simple reference to differences in wearing apparel nor can the male of the species be detected by the odor of tobacco.

The cigarette-toting woman is not confined to any age, social strata, profession or geographical location. The girls are smoking in Tennessee and in New York. Only the ultra-conservative include smoking in the dual standard of morals. George Sand couldn't attain imperishable fame today by smoking a cigar in public and Mrs. Fiske probably wouldn't ask a stagehand to light her cigar before the "smoking scene."

In other countries women have been smoking for many years. Until recently the custom was confined in this country to the unconventional and the independent. It seems only a year ago that the cigarette was a boudoir secret and cigarette smoking was a prank of mischievous boarding school girls.

Tobacco once furnished a moral issue. It ceased to be a moral issue when the women turned from moralizing to smoking. Henceforth smoking will be a health issue.

It must be awful to work in a bank and count so much money and get so little of it.

With the installation of the telephone typewriter here the roll room of the municipal police headquarters becomes a very business-like appearing place. In addition to this latest equipment there is the fire alarm transmitter and recording tape which permits a fire alarm sent to headquarters to be quickly transmitted to the general system, the telephone exchange which connects the various borough offices and the master clock which operates three other clocks in the building and also the clock in the cupola on the outside and the automatic clock which turns the lights on and off at designated hours in the cupola.

He did want to find her before the curtain went up, but if he could not, he would have to wait. Now the props were coming in around him so quickly that he looked for shelter away from the stage, and leaned back against the wall forlornly. He had not the slightest notion he was near a door until the call boy brushed past him and knocked loudly.

"Two minutes, Miss Lamar," he called.

The visitor waited until the boy had gone, and then he knocked gently, timidly.

"Aw, let me alone," Jerry's voice came out weakly.

He opened the door in spite of the order and looked in.

"May I come in?"

Jerry gasped and stood up.

"Why, Mr. Lee, yes, of course, you can come in."

He came towards her and took both her hands.

"Jerry, last night when I was in a somewhat tumbled condition, I remember distinctly asking you to be my wife. Of course, I see now I was presumptuous, and I apologize."

"Why should you apologize if you didn't mean it?"

"Why should you thing I didn't mean it?" Lee retorted.

"I've been told that a man doesn't mean anything he says after 2 A. M.—when he's—tumbled."

"Well—"

"Do you remember anything else you said last night?" Jerry went on.

"Front and center, Miss Lamar," came the call boy's voice from the door.

"All right," Jerry answered.

"Now, do you?" she asked, turning again to Lee.

Uncle Steve slipped his arm around her, and drew her close to him.

"I remember I said you were the best—the dearest, little girl I've ever known."

"But you don't still think so?" Jerry asked, determined that this time there should be no mistake.

"I do—more than ever, and I want you to marry me, Jerry."

Now he encircled her with both arms and bent his face to hers.

"Now wait a minute," Jerry said, pushing him away. "You don't know what you're letting yourself in for. There's quite a family of us."

"I don't care."

"Miss Lamar," came the call boy's voice again, "you'll have to hurry."

"O. K.," she answered, loosening his hold on her and going to the dresser for a last dab of powder.

"There's my sister, my mother, and my brother, Bobbie. I've always looked after him, and oh, Uncle Steve, he needs so many things, a pony and clothes, and he eats an awful lot."

"I don't care."

"Of course, he'll grow up and then you'll have to send him to school—to college—and start him in business."

1930 HUPMOBILE EIGHT FIVE-PASSENGER SEDAN. Standard equipped $1595. Custom equipment available at slight extra cost.

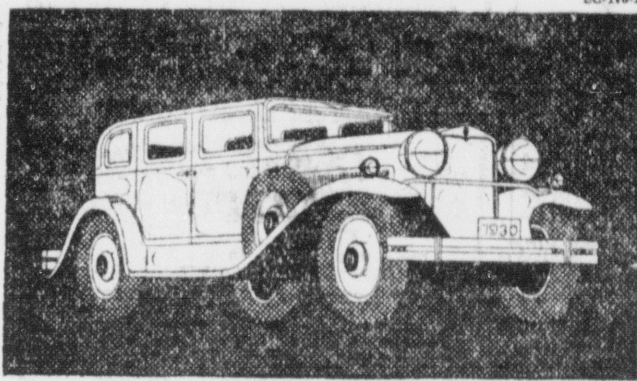

Why the New 1930 Hupmobiles are VELVET-SMOOTH

High speeds ordinarily bring out noise and discomfort that low speeds conceal. But Hupmobile's smoothness extends throughout the speed range. The extra-heavy, counterweighted crankshaft, with wide cheeks and big bearings, spins true and vibration-free. There are roller bearings on transmission countershaft and sliding gear shaft. Silent steel chains drive camshaft and generator. A spring cushion keeps the clutch quiet. Improved shock absorbers respond, noiselessly, to every move of the body. Matched springs float you along, with no protesting creaks. Spare wheel carriers are bolted rigidly to the frame. Tailor-fitted bodies eliminate rattles. Big steel drum brakes neither squeak nor chatter. Fenders and running boards of heavy steel, strongly braced, are solid at all speeds. The steering wheel stays steady.

Drive either or both of these two new Hupmobiles. Give them your hardest tests. Listen for noise. Watch for vibration. And you'll say, "Smooth as velvet."

Scouts Participate In West District Contest

(Continued from Page One) meals that he arranged. The famous fried chicken dinner on Sunday was undoubtedly the much looked for feed and when the deliciously browned fowl was arranged on a serving platter there were many happy shouts of anticipation among the campers. In view of the annual meeting taking place at this time, with the selection of a member of the Lodge to be honored by becoming eligible for the highest degree, that of third degree, Mahlon Detweiler, of Perkasie, for his service to Scouting and the Brotherhood, was selected to become the winner into the third degree at the Grand Lodge meeting in Philadelphia the latter part of November.

James Townsend of Langhorne was selected as a delegate from the lodge to represent the Bucks County Chapter at the grand lodge meeting. Officers of the Bucks County Lodge for the year 1930 were elected with the result that the following Scouts will take office: Chief, Carl Foell, of Bristol; senior vice-chief, John Hershey, of Yardley; District A vice-chief, George Hermann, of Bristol; District B vice-chief, Robert Larzelere, Doylestown.

INDIGESTION IS PUT TO ROUT BY FAMED KONJOLA!

For Years Even the Lightest Diet Caused Misery—Relief Is Found at Last

MRS. SARAH MARKS

"For years I had to restrict myself to the very lightest of diets, and even then I suffered terribly from gas and bloating pains," said Mrs. Sarah Marks, 2529 Corlies street, Philadelphia, Penna. "Nothing agreed with me, and what little food I could digest did me little good. I lost steadily in weight, strength and vitality."

"Konjola went right to the seat of my troubles. In a week my appetite and digestion began to improve. Thereafter the betterment was rapid, and in four weeks my stomach was as strong as it was years ago. I am feeling simply great now, and getting stronger every day. I am happy to pass along the good news about Konjola."

Konjola is sold in Bristol at Hoffman's Cut Rate store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)

... in a cigarette it's TASTE!

...that's why
THE BYRD EXPEDITION
chose Chesterfield

Few tests are fool-proof—but the Byrd Antarctic Expedition used one when it chose cigarettes for its two years in the ice.

Members of the expedition—all men of judgment and experience—were simply asked, "What cigarette do you like best?" And a large majority answered Chesterfield.

Picked men, picked cigarettes...cigarettes chosen for the only reason that ever appeals to experienced smokers: dependable good taste—

"TASTE above everything"

MILD, yes...and
yet THEY SATISFY
